

Junior Project Manager Construction

Description

Speyhawk Ltd are recruiting on behalf of an International Specialist Stone Contractor. As result of their planned expansion they are now seeking a Junior Construction Project Manager to join their team in London.

Up to £45,000 + Pension

Our client is a small but highly successful specialist sub contractor in the field of natural stone, operating within the super prime, residential and hospitality sector in London. With an international reach they supply and fit the finest stone finishings, working with Architects, Contractors and End Clients alike.

This position demands a building professional, with either a degree in Construction Management or practical site experience gained with a specialist sub contractor, in the fit-out or ideally specialist stone sector. You will shadow a Senior Project Manager/Contracts Manager, in the effective management of multiple contracts, with values typically between £50,000 to £1million.

Experience of stonework would be a distinct advantage; however, enthusiasm and the desire to learn are paramount as the end goal will be for you to work independently, running your own projects with the support of a close-knit team, made up of design, commercial and project management professionals.
