Senior Project Manager Construction

Description

Senior Project Manager | Fitout | Construction | London

Up to £85,000 + travel, health, pension and bonus incentive

Our client is a highly successful specialist contractor operating throughout London on new build commercial and residential projects. They supply and fit some of the finest internal finishings, working with leading Architects and Contractors alike.

Due to a significant project win they are now in the market a Project Director with fitout experience in the luxury residential or hospitality sector to join their senior management team.

This position demands a true building professional, with strong commercial awareness, combined with a first-class background in the effective management of project teams on major projects, with package values typically in excess of £50m+.

Due to the heavy element of natural stone finishes, experience in this specialist field would be advantageous, however a solid track record of interiors/fit out on prime residential would equally be of interest.

You must demonstrate the ability to work independently within a close-knit team in order to make a valuable contribution to the ongoing success of the business.
